

2022 Annual Wage and Benefit Scenarios for a Single Parent with Two Children

(Calculated Assuming Full-time Employment of 40 Hours per Week and Four Months of Earned Income Disregard)

* $12.84 per hour is the state average beginning wage (from September 1, 2020 to August 31, 2021) for Choices participants entering employment.

Note: Starting at $12.00 per hour, TANF values are $0. Values are static for Medicaid and child care. Child Care values assume no parent share of cost based on 12-month eligibility for Choices Child Care. SNAP values are derived by using four months of the Earned Income Disregard (EID) values plus eight months of transitional values. Housing and transportation costs are not included.

2022 Monthly Wage and Benefit Scenarios for a Single Parent with Two Children

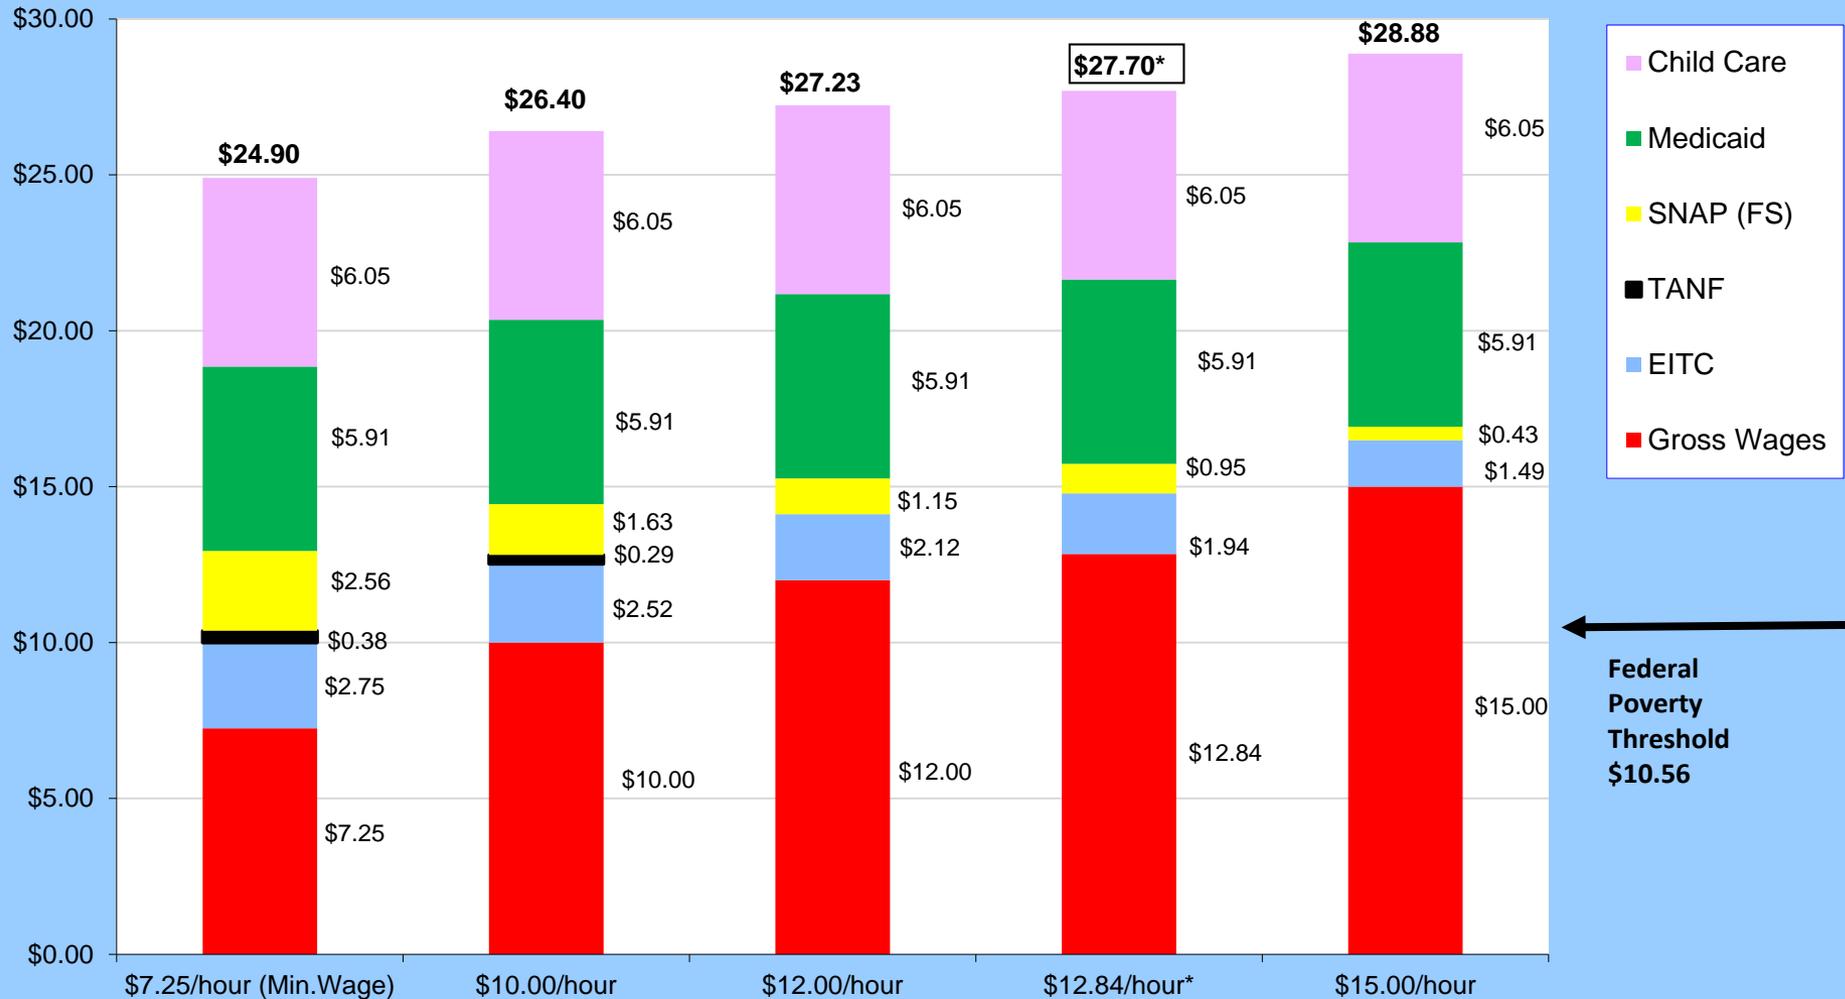

(Calculated Assuming Full-time Employment of 40 Hours per Week. Monthly Values based on Transitional Benefits)

* $12.84 per hour is the state average beginning wage (from September 1, 2020 to August 31, 2021) for Choices participants entering employment.
 Note: Starting at $7.25 per hour, TANF values are $0, values are static for Medicaid and child care, and SNAP values are monthly transitional values. Child Care values assume no parent share of cost based on 12-month eligibility for Choices Child Care. Housing and transportation costs are not included.

2022 Hourly Wage and Benefit Scenarios for a Single Parent with Two Children

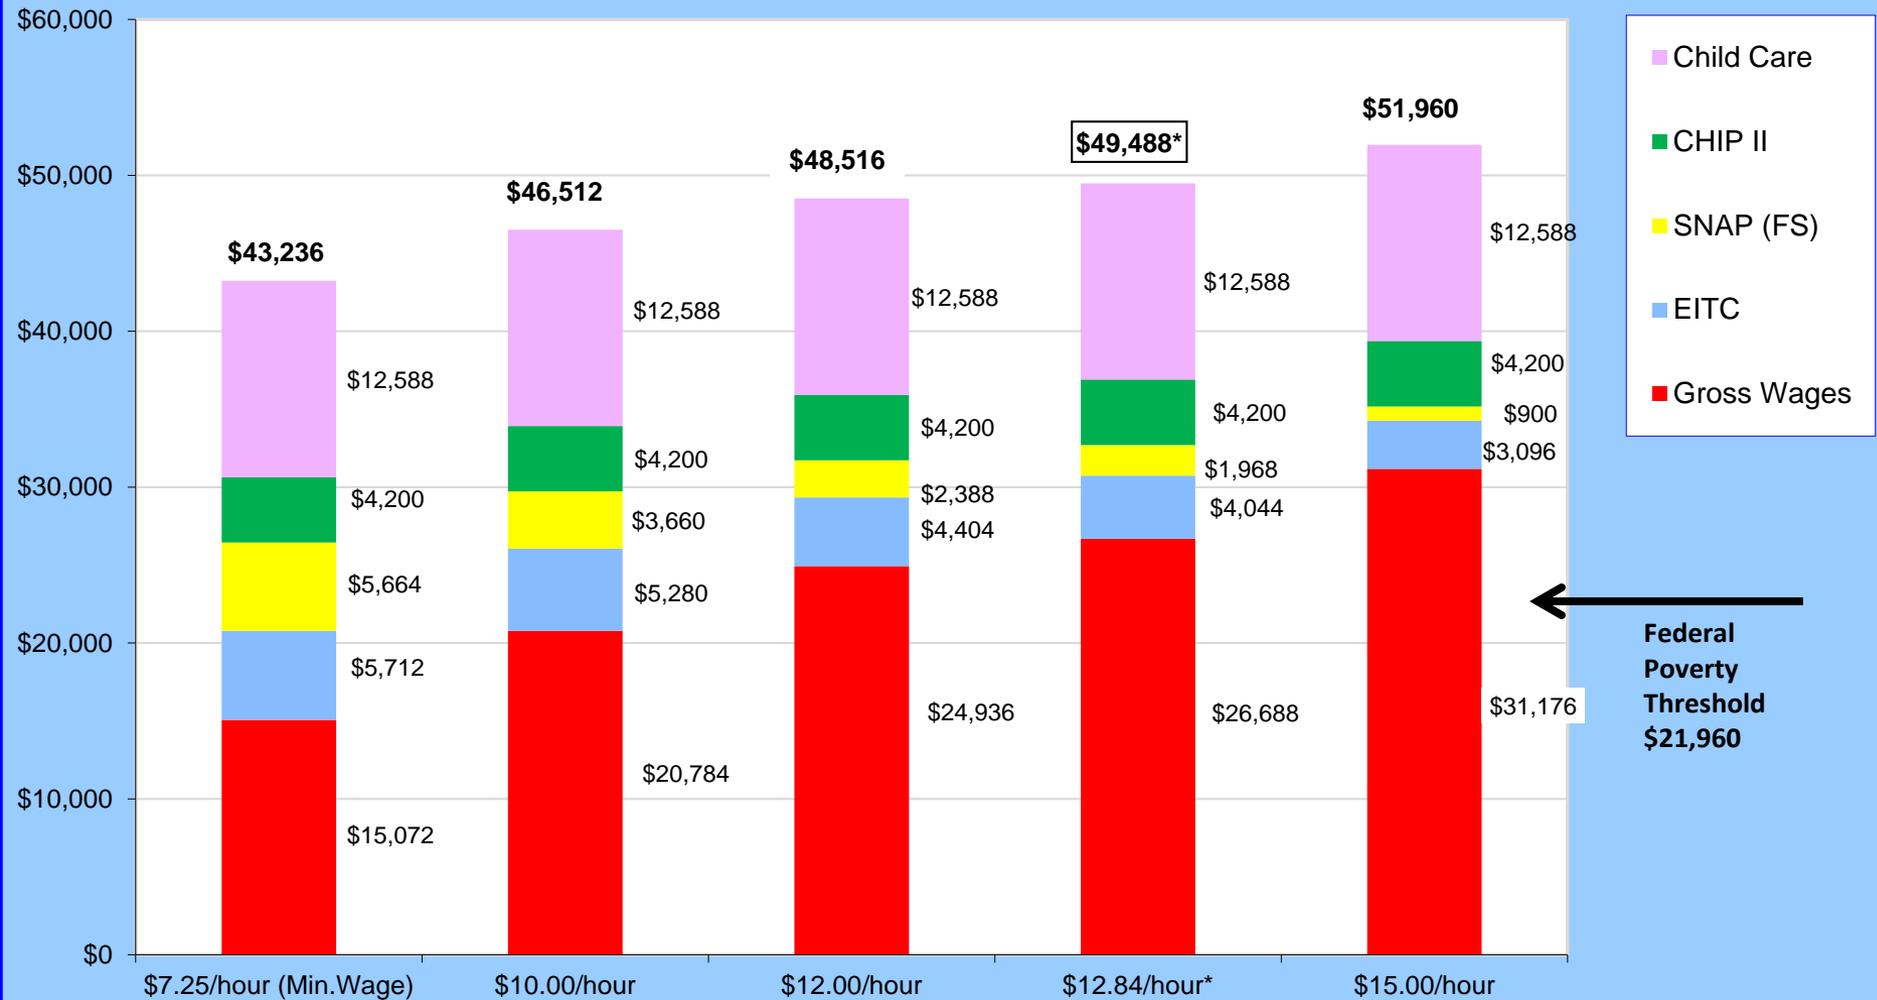

(Calculated Assuming Full-time Employment of 40 Hours per Week and Four Months of Earned Income Disregard)

* $12.84 per hour is the state average beginning wage (from September 1, 2020 to August 31, 2021) for Choices participants entering employment.
 Note: Starting at $12.00 per hour, TANF values are $0. Values are static for Medicaid and child care. Child Care values assume no parent share of cost based on 12-month eligibility for Choices Child Care. SNAP values are derived by using four months of Earned Income Disregard (EID) values plus eight months of Transitional values. Values assume full-time employment of 2,080 hours per year. Housing and transportation costs are not included.

2022 Annual Wage and Benefit Scenarios for a TANF-Applicant Single Parent with Two Children

(Calculated Assuming Full-time Employment of 40 Hours per Week)

* $12.84 per hour is the state average beginning wage (from September 1, 2020 to August 31, 2021) for Choices participants entering employment.
 Note: Values are static for CHIP II and child care. Child Care values assume no parent share of cost based on 12-month eligibility for TANF Applicant Child Care. SNAP annual values are derived by using twelve months of transitional values. Housing and transportation costs are not included.

Date Source: Single Parent Family Income and Assistance Model, Texas Workforce Investment Council.

November 2021

2022 Monthly Wage and Benefit Scenarios for a TANF-Applicant Single Parent with Two Children

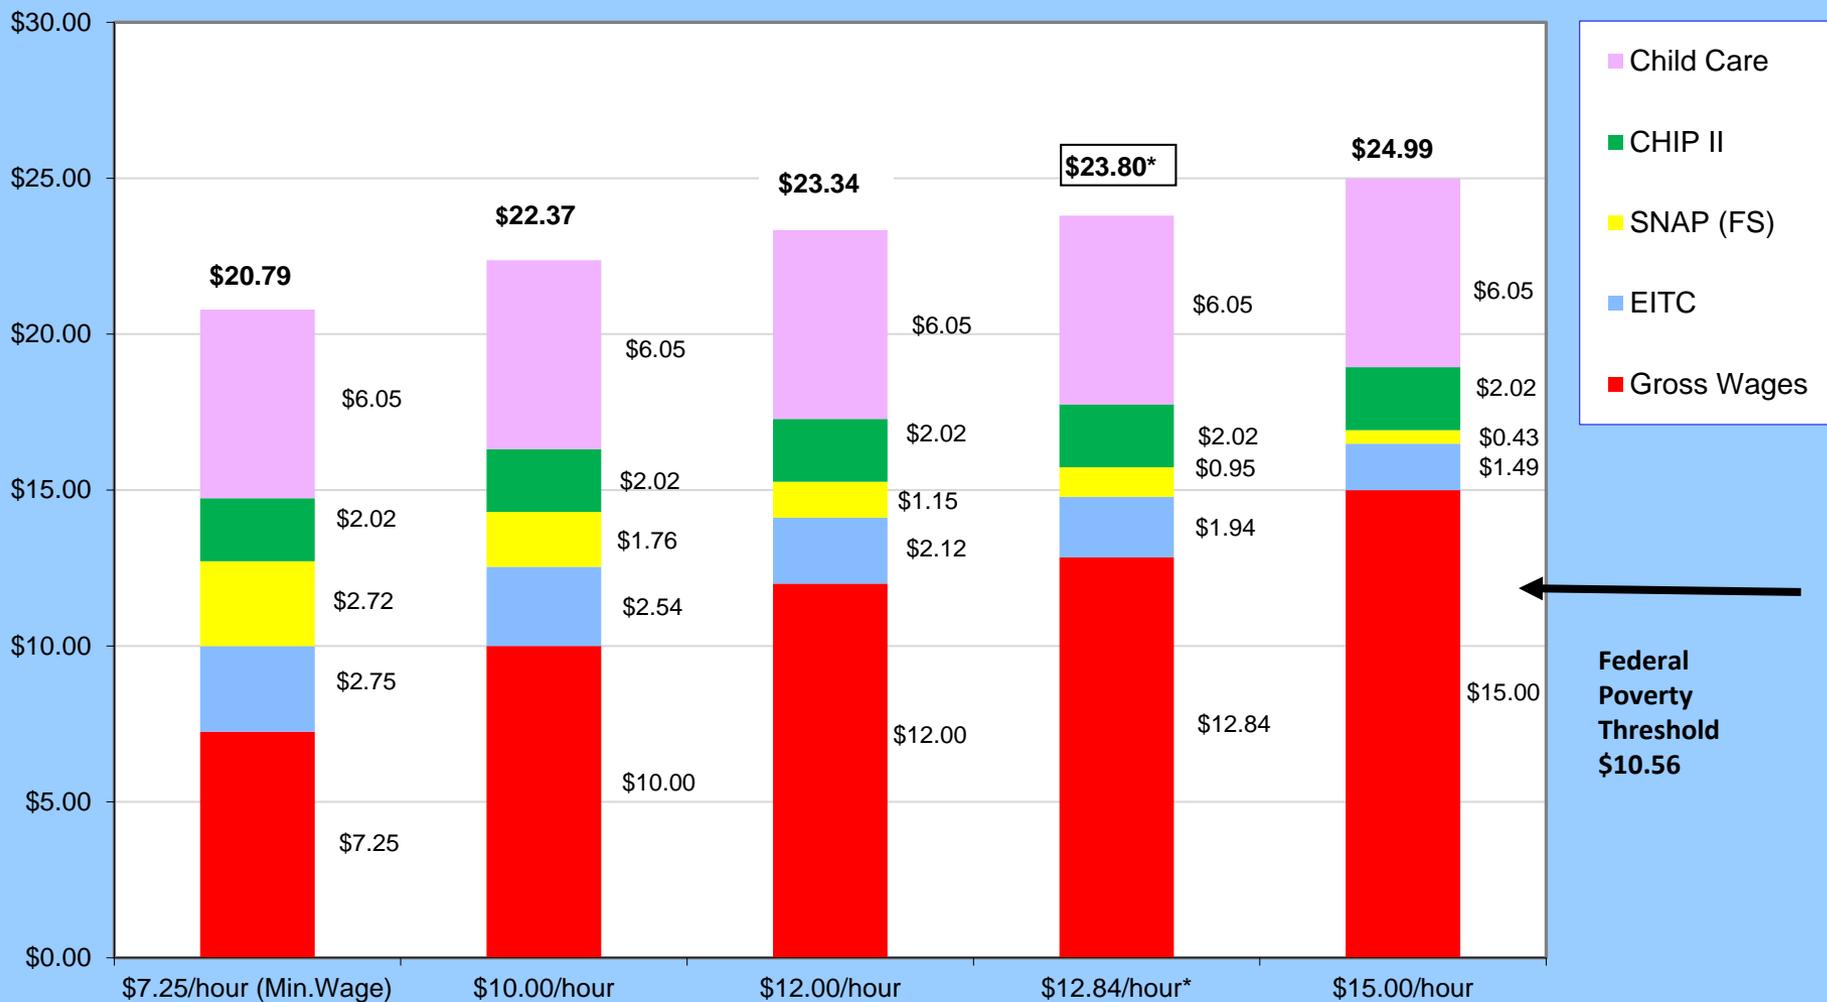

(Calculated Assuming Full-time Employment of 40 Hours per Week with Transitional Benefits)

* $12.84 per hour is the state average beginning wage (from September 1, 2020 to August 31, 2021) Choices participants entering employment.
 Note: Values are static for CHIP II and child care. Child Care values assume no parent share of cost based on 12-month eligibility for TANF Applicant Child Care. SNAP values are monthly transitional values. Housing and transportation costs are not included.

2022 Hourly Wage and Benefit Scenarios for a TANF-Applicant Single Parent with Two Children

(Calculated Assuming Full-time Employment of 40 Hours per Week)

* $12.84 per hour is the state average beginning wage (from September 1, 2020 to August 31, 2021) for Choices participants entering employment.

Note: Values are static for CHIP II and child care. Child Care values assume no parent share of cost based on 12-month eligibility for TANF Applicant Child Care. SNAP values are derived by using twelve months of transitional values. Values assume full-time employment of 2,080 hours per year. Housing and transportation costs are not included.